Death on the Rail.

Casualties on the railroads of the country during the year ended June 30, 1911, are shown in a report issued by the interstate commerce commission on Monday as 10,396 killed and 150,139 injured. Of this number, 439 killed and 2,557 injured are classed under the head of "industrial accidents" which do not involve the movement of cars or engines on rails. Of persons trespassing on railroad property, walking on tracks or stealing rides, 5,287 were killed and 5,074 injured. During the year one railroad employee was killed to every 453, and one employee injured to every 13 employed. The number of railroad employees on June 30, 1911, is given as 1,645,083. On electric lines, which carry interstate traffic, 410 persons were killed and 3,264 injured.

Dalton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Kandy is ill with diphtheria.

Organ Recital.

"Le Marius" Paris, May 3, 1908: "Mr. Clarence E. Shepherd, an organist altogether remarkable, gave at the LaSalle Gaveau a concert which brought him very great success after the execution of various works of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Chopin and Liszt."

The organist referred to in this notice will give a pipe organ recital in the new Congregational church Saturday evening, Nov. 25. He will be assisted by Mr. Olyde Nichols, tenor soloist of Detroit, Mich. Admission $1.00.

A Successful Hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Crouse and sons Gilbert and Charles returned on Monday from City Point where they had spent four days hunting. They secured four deer, one for each of the party, and a large timber wolf on which there is a bounty of twenty dollars. Not a bad four days hunt.

VISITED THE NEW INSANE ASYLUM.

Last Thursday afternoon the Tribune man accompanied the members of the county board to Marshfield where the new insane asylum, recently completed and put in operation, was visited.

The asylum is located about two and one half miles this side of Marshfield, both the Soo and Northwestern roads running through the land adjacent to the building, about a mile from the tracks. The land belonging to the asylum is what is left of 600 acres after the railway right of ways are taken out, or about 670 acres.

Only a part of this land is under cultivation or capable of being cultivated at the present time, but work is being done whenever the weather permits and it is the intention to have as much of it in use as possible during the coming season.

The asylum is an imposing looking building and is so located that it will be possible to surround it with grounds that will be ornamental when put into shape.

As the train was late on Thursday afternoon the visitors did not arrive at their destination until nearly half past three o'clock. They were met by Mr. Gilson, the manager of the place as well as Geo. Ward and Robt. Connor, two of the commissioners, and after warming up a bit they were taken on a tour of inspection thru the place.

To say that the visitors were very favorably impressed with the appearance of things in general, doesn't half express it. Everything was as neat as a pin, and as the visitors wandered thru the kitchen, serving room, dining room and bakery it was a matter of wonder how the number of people there could be taken care of with such a marked absence of anything resembling dirt or confusion.

The asylum has a capacity of 181 patients, although Manager Gilson made the statement that they could accommodate 200 without crowding unnecessarily.

At the present time there are 86 in the building, about half men and half women. The visitors went thru both the male and female wards, and any present who had expected any scenes of wild disorder were disappointed. The visitors conversed with the patients and they seemed to be pretty generally as happy and contented as a man in such a place could be expected to feel.

Among the inmates from this city is E. W. Young, who, upon being questioned stated that they were well treated and well fed, and he said that he would rather be at home where it is possible for him to be there. Miss Nellie Bell is also a patient from this city and is apparently enjoying good health.

Thursday was a stormy day and most of the patients were inside, the superintendent stating that only about twelve were occupied at work outside of the building at that time. The patients are kept busy as much as possible out of doors whenever the weather will permit, this generally being better for them than confinement in the building.

The patients are not confined to rooms unless their trouble makes it necessary to keep them shut up, being allowed in the corridors where there are a number of attendants to see that order is kept at all times.

At the present time only one floor of the building is in use, the top floor being shut off from the rest, but this will come into use as the number of patients is increased. It was stated that another consignment of nineteen was expected the first of the month, which would raise the number to 105.

The dormitories each contain seven or eight beds, the bedsteads being of white enamel and as neat and clean as it would be possible to make them. There is an abundance of bath rooms scattered thruout the building, with shower baths in the basement where the patients who are employed outside remove their working clothes, take a bath and put on the clothing that they wear inside, and then pass into their quarters.

There are also store rooms and ventilating fans in the basement that force fresh air to all parts of the building. A number of cots are kept by the institution and they have a cream separator and are installing a churn so that they will make their own butter. Adjacent to the kitchen is a large refrigerator of sufficient capacity to accommodate all the supplies of a perishable nature. The refrigerator holds sixty tons of ice. The kitchen is wainscoted with white enamel and has tile flooring and much of the cooking is done by steam, although there are large ranges in the place also.

Immediately below the dining room is the amusement hall which is of generous proportions, where the inmates are said to hold dances at stated intervals.

The inspection of the building concluded at five o'clock and supper was announced at 5:30, and if there were any criticisms concerning the bill of fare none of them were heard at that time. The dining hall is a big room capable of accommodating two hundred people without anybody being crowded. The patients are not seated at long tables as is the custom.

All are cordially invited.

Majestic Range Demonstration!

At Our Store, ONE WEEK, Nov. 27 to Dec. 2.

FREE

THE GREAT AND GRAND MAJESTIC RANGE
THE RANGE WITH A REPUTATION
MADE IN ALL SIZES AND STYLES.

Set of Ware FREE

If you call at our store during our Majestic Demonstration Week and allow us to show you the many advantages and superior qualities of the Great Majestic Range, and will purchase one at the regular price, we will give you FREE the beautiful and useful Souvenir Set of Ware illustrated in this advertisement. This ware is made to match the quality of the Majestic Ranges, and we know all ladies will see the beauty and utility of this set, especially the first three pieces, which are entirely new and cannot be had alone by purchase, except at a very high price. The prices of Majestic Ranges are the same, but we give the set FREE with each Majestic Range bought during the demonstration week only.

Reasons Why The Great Majestic You Should Buy

- 1st. It has the reputation of being the best range money can buy.
- 2d. It not only has the reputation but IS the best range made, and we will prove this to you if you will let us.
- 3d. It is constructed of malleable iron, material you can't beat, and of Charcoal iron, material that resists rust 300 per cent greater than steel, is riveted together air tight. No heat escapes or cold air enters the range, thus uses very little fuel to do perfect work.
- 4th. The reservoir alone is worth the price of range over any other reservoir made. It boils 15 gallons of water; is heated like teakettle, with pocket against left hand lining, and is movable and sets on a frame, hence cannot wear out. When water gets too hot it can be moved away from fire.
- 5th. Majestic ranges use less fuel; heat more water—and heat it hotter; cost practically nothing for repairs; lasts three times as long; bakes better; easier to keep clean and gives better satisfaction than any other range on the market. If you know positively that the above statements are true, wouldn't you buy a Majestic at once? Come in Demonstration Week and We'll Prove It to You.

ONE WEEK ONLY---No ware given after Demonstration Week.

Black River Falls Catastrophe.

Owing to the fact, that several of our citizens have suggested that this community should do something to relieve the suffering caused by the high waters at Black River Falls, we have made the following arrangements, to-wit:

All persons desiring to contribute clothing, provisions or any other useful articles, may arrange with Mr. E. W. Kruger to deliver the same to the building on Second Street North formerly occupied by E. P. Van der Natch and implement transfer house, being Nos. 128 Second Street North, and Mr. E. W. Kruger will see that the same is forwarded to the proper committee at Black River Falls so that it will reach the sufferers, and those intended by the contributors.

All persons desiring to contribute cash may pay the same to Mr. E. W. Kruger either at the store of Kruger & Warner Company, or may mail him check, and he will attend to forwarding the same to the proper committee at Black River Falls. There will be absolutely no expense in connection with this matter as the building is owned by Messrs. Kruger & Wheeler and there will be no rent charged therefor whatever. Mr. Kruger agrees to contribute his time to the above extent, so that the total cost will be in connection with transportation.

We trust that the kind-hearted sympathetic citizens in this community will respond quickly and liberally.

Mayor.

Fate of the Vesper Foundry

The Vesper Safety Chain & Malleable Iron Co. is now where it ought to have been the next day after it started—in the receiver's hands. Being unable to meet the bills the creditors, principally workmen, forced them to the wall, and last week got an order from the court appointing Fred Vollmar, of Marshfield, temporary receiver. Owing to the bad condition of its affairs no effort will be made by the receiver to run the plant and put it into the feet. We understand the liabilities of the company will aggregate $30,000, with little assets beyond the physical valuation of the plant. The affairs of the company will be wound up as rapidly as possible, and it is estimated that the stockholders will get nothing. Briefly the concern has been "choked" from the time of its inception about two years ago. The first lemon was handed them by the promoters was a patent on a safety device for $10,000, which did not pan out well. It was afterward discovered that the original owner of the patent only received $120 for it and they have the original receipt for it in their possession. Some of the stockholders have consulted an attorney and as soon as a returner fee is provided sufficient to carry the case to the supreme court a $10,000 suit will be brought against the promoters to recover on the patent claim. The company never had an adequate working capital, and this together with excessively high salaries paid its officers soon reduced its assets to their present condition.—Vesper State Center.

Liberal Prizes.
We wish to call special attention to the fact that the very liberal prizes ($10.00 first and $5.00 second) to be paid at the Agricultural Contest, December 31st, on general exhibits of all products raised on the farm. It will pay any farmer to bring samples of all the different things raised this year and make up an attractive display as possible. Everything on the premium list should be brought in sufficient quantity to be tagged separately as well as collectively, making it possible to win several prizes. Do not say you haven't any show to win because you have, and besides you will derive much pleasure from working on your display.

Of course, if you can't compete for this prize you should bring something any way and get some of the pure bred seed to be given all exhibitors.

Must Enlarge Their Board.
E. B. Smart, manager of the Wood County Telephone Company, reports that the switchboard in the local office has been entirely filled up and that it will be impossible to add new phones until an addition is made to the board. A new section has been ordered for the board which will accommodate 200 more subscribers and this will be installed as soon as possible, although some little time will elapse before the work can be finished up.

New Store.
John Young, the west side painter, has rented the store in the MacKinnon building occupied by J. Zimmerman's shoe store, and intends to open up a first class paint and wall paper store as soon as Mr. Zimmerman moves into his new quarters. Mr. Young has already purchased his stock of goods which will be one of the finest and most complete ever shown in the city.

COUNTY BOARD STILL IN SESSION.

The county board is still in session and the indications were this Wednesday morning that they will not be able to finish their labors today. Most of the work of the board has been routine business such as coming up at every session.

The matter of improving the highway of the county under the state aid system was put in charge of the state highway commission. It was expected that a county highway commissioner might be elected at this session of the board, but as there seemed to be nobody particularly anxious for the position and persons with the necessary knowledge of highway building are scarce, it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the state. The county has to pay a certain amount of the highway tax each year whether the towns vote any local aid or not, and if we do not use the money here at home it will go to the counties that do vote aid, so that we will be paying for the improvements in other parts of the state whether we improve our own or not. Under the existing circumstances the action of the board was probably the best to be done.

It is expected that the matter of voting an appropriation for the proposed experimental farm near Marshfield will be brought up sometime today.

The Problem Solved.

Prof. Culver of the Stevens Point Normal has solved several knotty problems all at one fell swoop. How to protect our large game from extinction, also how to protect the hunter from getting his liver punctured by a .38 caliber soft nosed bullet. The professor is a devotee of archery and he suggests that the modern rifle be taken away from the deer hunter and that he be armed instead with a bow and arrows, and thus be allowed to take all the deer he wants to, there being no closed season nor game laws of any kind.

This is certainly the most brilliant plan for preserving the deer and at the same time protecting the hunter that we have yet heard of. Just imagine some of our local hunters out after deer with a bow and arrow. Every American boy who has any "git" in him at all has passed through the bow and arrow craze at some stage of his existence and he generally came out of it thoroughly convinced that while the bow and arrow may have been quite a weapon in the hands of a man gifted with the skill of an archer, it didn't amount to much with the average boy.

No doubt the plan is a good one, especially from the viewpoint of the deer, but we do not look for its adoption at once.

"The Lonesome Pine."

A graphic story of modern times in Bert Mosher's newest offering, featuring a new star with a brilliant future, "Roy Lamarr." It's a play out of the ordinary, full of play and action, inspiring in its theme, thrilling in its situations and declared by critics to be one of the most perfectly constructed plays of today. It depicts life in the locale of the story as it could be pictured only by one intimately acquainted with the passions, impulses and motives which inspire deep in the heart of nature. Throughout the play there is a tenderness and natural wisdom which speaks volumes, offered for your approval on Thursday, Nov. 23 at Daly's Theatre. Seats now on sale.

"The Lonesome Pine" is called a long wanted play. Has enjoyed the pronounced success presented by Bert Mosher, that well known producing manager. The acts are crowded with interest, charged with passion and filled with action. All acts and scenes are modern. It tells a story of a young girl's struggle and success. Summing it all up it's a stirring comedy drama with a recognized cast of Metropolitan players. Prices 25, 35, and 50 cents.

Average Price of Potatoes.

Ben Hansen, who travels about the northern part of the state as inspector of warehouses for the L. Stark Potato Company, recently ran across a man by the name of M. P. Kjer, who conducts the warehouse for the Stark Company at Amherst Junction, who has been keeping track of the average price of potatoes during the past four years. He finds that the price during that time has averaged 37 cents. Following is the average for each year:

BIRDS AND THEIR ENEMIES.

A recent report of the United States Bureau of Entomology constitutes one of the strongest arguments in favor of the absolute economic utility of exterminating America's bird life. This country, says a bureau expert, suffers each year through insects a loss aggregating $1,200,000,000; rodents cost us $200,000,000; weeds more than $100,000,000. These are staggering figures, indeed. They need not be minutely accurate to point a moral as obvious as it is important. Every thinking person knows they are near enough the truth to make the warning significant. In nature's balance of living agencies the birds found their largest utility in keeping the insect pests of mankind in subjection. Not all birds eat insects, but most do. Others destroy rodents, and many eat the seeds of weeds. It was a fine scheme of economy nature had in mind. Had it been a human scheme, it would have been a masterpiece of business. The birds have been a blessing to man. A policy widely recognized as indefensible has been followed for years. America looks the bill for her own indifference. The first punishment is visited upon the farmers, but its effects are felt by every family in the land.

The rapid transmission of news among Kaffirs and Hottentots is a mystery which even Mr. Haggard is unable to solve. Mr. Haggard was in Pretoria in 1875, at the time of the battle of Mankwago. Twelve hours after the disaster an old Hottentot washerwoman told him that Cetewayo had defeated the light troops, and gave details of the fight. So impressed was Mr. Haggard that he reported the information to his official superior. This indisposition pointed out that it was impossible for the news to be true, as Mankwago was 192 miles from Pretoria, and no telegraphic or railway communication existed between the two places. On the following day official confirmation of the disaster was brought by mounted messengers, who were dispatched immediately after the battle and traveled at top speed all the way. Yet the natives went by twenty hours, and the washerwoman's story was true to every detail.

The assertion that cats are necessary in bakeries is supported by wide observation and by the judgment of practical and scientific authorities in all parts of the world. It is a fact, and no better antidote for them than cats have ever been found. Poison will not do—especially in a bakery, where the smell of the poisoned rats coming from the holes into which they had retreated to die would corrupt the air and the bread. It is a common error that would object to bakers keeping cats.

CYCLONE KILLS 9 IN ROCK COUNTY

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION LEFT IN COUNTRY NEAR JANEVILLE BY TWISTER.

LOSS NEAR MILLION MARK

Storm Originates Near Orfordville and Travels Northeast to Milwaukee—Narrowly Misses—One Family Rending Near Hanover Annihilated—Drop of 65 Degrees in Temperature Causes Suffering.

Janeville.—Splintered timbers, broken furniture, crumpled rock and plaster scattered, farm produce and stock farm animals littering the ground over an area a quarter mile in width and twenty miles in length, indicate the tremendous force with which southern Wisconsin's worst cyclone cut a swath through.

Two miles north of Janeville a house and a part of a barn were carried into Rock river. All telephone and telegraph poles in the path of the cyclone were snapped off and wires line the roads.

A meeting of citizens and business men of Janeville was held and tentatively relief arrangements provided for the victims of the tornado.

Many of the residents of the territory visited by the tornado are worse than destitute. They are not only homeless but they are wounded. The more fortunate farmers in the neighborhood took the victims of the storm into their homes and cared for them.

But relief of this character can only be temporary, and other relief must be provided, or about 150 persons will perish.

The gas company's plant, which furnished light for the towns of Milton and Milton Junction, is a complete wreck. Parts of the machinery and large tank of the plant were carried more than a half mile away.

Five trees, three inches in diameter, were broken off and in an old nursery 150 fruit trees were felled in rows like dominoes.

Tobacco men are unable to estimate the loss of the leaf in the sheds which were blown down. In some places, fields of thirty-five and forty acres of fodder and corn were swept entirely clear and the forests scattered over a large area.

Hugo lifted the foundations and moved several hundred feet.

The cyclone was of the "twister" variety. It originated in the vicinity of Orfordville, twelve miles southwest of Janeville, traveled northeast for several miles and then turned to the east, passing this city by a narrow margin. Its force was spent near Milton. The greatest damage was done near the point of origin and at Milton.

The cyclone was accompanied by a driving rain. There had been a high wind all day and this continued throughout the night. The cyclone hit at about 2:30 in the afternoon. It was as dark as night. The blinding downpour made search for the dead and dying a terrible task.

Wire service was demoralized, and it was not until the following day that news of the disaster was obtainable. Within a few hours the mercury dropped from 75 degrees above to nearly zero, and it was a fearful night, for the grief stricken survivors, many left without a roof to cover their heads.

Entire Family Wiped Out.—The Anton Schmidt family, three-quarters of a mile east of Hanover, was annihilated. The father and two daughters were instantly killed and the son, Albert, aged 14, has succumbed to injuries.

Allice Schmidt, who kept house for her father, and her younger sister were in the house when the cyclone struck. Their bodies were blown across the road by the cyclone being driven over their heads. Their necks were broken, skulls fractured, and it required two men to pull the half buried bodies from the ground. Anton Schmidt, the father, the boy Albert and a tramp were in the barn. The tramp, who was not injured, says Mr. Schmidt was blown from the house when the cyclone struck it. Helen was the only one killed.

Mrs. Austin was seriously injured and it was thought for a time she would die. Her sister, Miss Elizabeth Home, was also badly hurt, but will recover. Helen's sister Florence

Child Killed by Stray Bullet.—Coudersay.—Jerdan Sandberg, aged 4, living near Radisson, was shot and instantly killed in the yard of his parents' farm. A stray bullet struck it, presumably fired by a hunter, passed through her neck.

TRUST IS OUSTED

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY FINED BY STATE OF MISSOURI.

$50,000 PENALTY ASSESSED

Supreme Court Holds Concern Was Organized as Holding Body to Evade Laws, and Declares That It Is an Unlawful Combine.

Jefferson City, Mo.—The International Harvester Company of America is ousted from Missouri and fined $50,000 as an unlawful combine in restraint of trade, by a decision of the state supreme court.

The court imposed this condition—that if the company pays the fine, separates itself from the International Harvester company of New Jersey, files a statement of its business and shows to the court that it will obey the laws in the future. It may be permitted to continue to do business in the state. It has 60 days to comply with this order.

The court sustained the position of Special Commissioner Bruce on every contention. It was declared in the opinion that competitors were ousted and that practically all of the harvest or business was done by the respondent company in the state. It held that it is contrary to the laws of Missouri for one company to conduct the business of another, as, in this case, the New Jersey company had no license to do business in Missouri.

In December, 1910, the International Harvester company was found guilty of violating the Missouri antitrust laws by a commissioner appointed by the state supreme court. The case was submitted to the supreme court for affirmation last April.

The companies' appeal up to the supreme court is now pending.

The decision is a blow to the company from entering. The International has practiced a monopoly on the sale of binders in Missouri.

Commissioner Bruce declared in his report that the International company, by reason of its enormous capital—$120,000,000—could not obtain a license in Missouri, as the International Harvester company of America, as a selling agent, was organized and obtained a license. This concern, he said, was organized simply to evade the laws of the state which barred the holding company from entering.

The International company found that the International had practiced a monopoly on the sale of binders in Missouri.

SOLONS OF ILLINOIS QUIT

Two Houses Adjourn, Since Die Just Before Governor's Message Proposing Session Arrives.

Springfield.—With the governor's secretary waiting at the door to present the message, the general assembly, which had adjourned a sine die adjournment, resumed session.

Pursuant to this measure, the assembly adjourned without making provision to pay its employees, who must await the generosity of a future session.

When the call for a special session will go out has not been determined. It may be predicted the date will not be fixed until after the adjournment of the December term of the supreme court, about December 15.

The governor's message, which was pending in the court which he decided against the state, will create a condition of chaos such as never existed in Illinois. The governor therefore will await the court's action.

TERRITORY CEDED BY FRANCE TO GERMANY

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY FINED BY STATE OF MISSOURI.

$50,000 PENALTY ASSESSED

Supreme Court Holds Concern Was Organized as Holding Body to Evade Laws, and Declares That It Is an Unlawful Combine.

Jefferson City, Mo.—The International Harvester Company of America is ousted from Missouri and fined $50,000 as an unlawful combine in restraint of trade, by a decision of the state supreme court.

The court imposed this condition—that if the company pays the fine, separates itself from the International Harvester company of New Jersey, files a statement of its business and shows to the court that it will obey the laws in the future. It may be permitted to continue to do business in the state. It has 60 days to comply with this order.

The court sustained the position of Special Commissioner Bruce on every contention. It was declared in the opinion that competitors were ousted and that practically all of the harvest or business was done by the respondent company in the state. It held that it is contrary to the laws of Missouri for one company to conduct the business of another, as, in this case, the New Jersey company had no license to do business in Missouri.

In December, 1910, the International Harvester company was found guilty of violating the Missouri antitrust laws by a commissioner appointed by the state supreme court. The case was submitted to the supreme court for affirmation last April.

The companies' appeal up to the supreme court is now pending.

The decision is a blow to the company from entering. The International has practiced a monopoly on the sale of binders in Missouri.

Commissioner Bruce declared in his report that the International company, by reason of its enormous capital—$120,000,000—could not obtain a license in Missouri, as the International Harvester company of America, as a selling agent, was organized and obtained a license. This concern, he said, was organized simply to evade the laws of the state which barred the holding company from entering.

The International company found that the International had practiced a monopoly on the sale of binders in Missouri.

LABOR ASKS RECALL

PRESIDENT GOMPERS OF FEDERATION CALLS TAIT'S MESSAGE ON ARIZONA "CANT."

TELLS OF UNIONS' GROWTH

"Semi-identification of Judges is Drivel." He Says, and Avers Change in National Principles is Near—Asserts Membership Greatest in History.

Atlanta, Ga.—Predicting great changes in American methods of government, especially with regard to political parties, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, presented his annual report to the thirty-first convention of that body here.

He gave the referendum, initiative and recall the unqualified endorsement of organized labor and declared that a real, representative democracy had never been known in the United States because of the absence of these provisions.

"This semi-identification of judges," he said in defense of his endorsement, "this sanctimonious cant about 'mob rule,' some of which was in President Taft's message vetoing the Arizona statehood bill, is mere drivel."

President Gompers' report, which covers 60 closely printed pages, is a newspaper, says it leaves many subjects untouched or inaccurately presented. The report declares for and says organized labor demands:

Passage of the so-called anti-union bills at the next session of congress.

Further restriction of convict labor. Legislation to relieve civil service employees from the executive orders prohibiting them from petitioning congress.

Uniform laws for protection of life and health in factory buildings.

Department of labor in the federal government.

Employers' liability and workmen's compensation acts throughout the states.

Severe arraignment is made of the so-called scientific management, or efficiency systems.

With its membership now more than 1,750,000, the greatest in its history, and its financial condition excellent, the organization enters the thirty-first year of its work.

DECLARES ARABS ARE CRUEL

War Minister of Italy at Rome Tells in Cable of Atrocities.

Washington.—That "the punishment fitted the crime, and 'blood met blood' on Tripoli's battlefields" was declared in a cablegram to the Italian minister by San Giuliano, Italian minister of war, referring to the reported atrocities against the Turks and Arabs.

The cablegram from San Giuliano was in the form of an official statement under the caption: "Italian Heart; Arabian Cruelty."

Turkey Ready for Peace.—Athens.—Private telegrams from Constantinople say that the Turkish government is ready to accept the good offices of the powers with a view to peace. It is learned, however, that Italy has refused to acquiesce in this plan.

Canali Succeeds Falconio.—Rome.—Monsignor Canali, under secretary of state at the Vatican, has been appointed to succeed Monsignor Falconio as apostolic delegate to the United States.

London Money Lender Arks Woman Friend of King Edward to Repay $25,000.

Kenosha.—Anna Livingston, fifty-eight, formerly a Milwaukee woman, pleaded guilty to being a white slave in the municipal court here and was sentenced for two years to the state prison in Waupun. She was charged with enticing Loretta Wells, seventeen, to go to Chicago. The woman and the girl were arrested at a house at 62 Illinois street and the girl made a complete confession. The woman was sent to the state industrial school for girls at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee.—While trying to cross Reed and Florida streets Mary, four-year-old daughter of Joseph Sabien, 230 Florida street, was struck by a motor car and killed. The car was driven by a man who was charged with the crime. The child started to cross the street and either failed to hear the warning song of the oncoming car or disregarded the signal, and walked directly in front of the car. The motor man did all in his power to bring the car to a stop.

La Crosse.—Ella Schoppe and Genevieve Wilson of Watertown, both aged sixteen, came here recently in quest of situations as housemaids. Finding desirable employment of that nature they applied at the office of the state free employment bureau that they could not do ordinary housework. After a week spent here in an effort to find agreeable work they expressed a desire to go home, but had no money. Poor Commissioner Burdick, seeing Miss Schoppe's father to send for them.

Superior.—The vicinity of the new famous Dietz farm on the Thornapple river is this year to be the scene of more deer hunting than it has since the appearance of John Dietz. With thirty serving a term in Waupun, the thuddity of hunters in former years has no excuse for existence, and, according to reports, they are crowding into the territory, which is admittedly one of the best deer hunting grounds in northern Wisconsin.

Iron Master Heads New Corporation That Will Have Charge of Distribution of Fund.

New York.—To promote the advancement and diffusion of knowledge among the people of the United States, Andrew Carnegie has given $25,000,000.

This latest bequest of the Laird of Skibo was made at the organization meeting of the Carnegie Corporation of New York which was incorporated by the New York legislature June 9 last.

It is intended that the business of founding and aiding libraries and educational institutions which has been carried on by Mr. Carnegie as an individual for many years will be turned over to the corporation and carried on by it.

The incorporators met at Mr. Carnegie's residence, adopted a constitution and by-laws and elected the following officers:

President, Andrew Carnegie; Vice-President, Elihu Root; Treasurer, Robert A. Francis; Secretary, James Bertman.

Tug Tatosch Rescues Schooner Washington After Hopeless Thirty-Hour Battle With Giant Waves.

Astoria, Ore.—Rescued from the jaws of death after a battle with the elements extending over nearly thirty hours, 47 passengers and sailors on the schooner Washington, which struck on Peacock Spit, were towed to this port. Taking advantage of the cessation of the gale the Columbia bar tug Tatosch, Capt. Charles T. Bailey, slipped in close to the Washington and after several attempts got a line aboard.

The rescue of the Washington and its passengers and crew was dramatic. Hundreds of persons who had gathered on the beach in the early morning hours and had watched the vessel all day, momentarily expecting to see it crushed on the rock near North Head, its passengers and crew swept into the sea, saw the Tatosch reach its side.

ADVENTURES of the WORLD'S GREATEST DETECTIVES

By George Barton

The Great Staten Island Conspiracy

An Episode in the Career of W. W. Applegate, once Chief of the New England District of the United States Secret Service

EXT to the duty on imports, the internal revenue tax on spirits and tobacco do more to maintain the government of the United States than the revenue obtained from any other source. Consequently, some of the biggest frauds that have ever been attempted in this country have been embodied in schemes to avoid or evade that particular payment.

One of the boldest of these schemes was detected during the time that Colonel Whitley was head of the United States secret service. The counterfeit stamps were first discovered in New York, and later on similar bogus stamps made their appearance in eastern Maryland and in certain parts of the west. Colonel Whitley was very anxious to break up the whole fraudulent business. He did not believe in spasmodic arrests and the imprisonment of minor offenders. He desired to detect and arrest the principals. With this end in view, he sent for Mr. W. W. Applegate, one of the shrewdest and most reliable men in the service. He told him just what he wanted and said that he would be given all the assistance that was required to make a successful fight against the counterfeiters.

At that time Mr. Applegate was the chief operative of the Secret Service division and had charge of the New England district, with headquarters in Boston. One who knew him well has said that he possessed "good judgment and tact, and that he was clear-headed as well as right-minded." Colonel Whitley, who was a good judge of men, frequently said that Mr. Applegate possessed in a marked degree the requisite qualities for a detective in the Secret Service. At any rate, his persistence and his steadiness of purpose, his zeal and his integrity, had been proven, and he was regarded as the man who was especially fitted to go after the internal revenue counterfeiters.

After he had fully digested all of the facts that were in the possession of his chief, Mr. Applegate journeyed to New York where he believed the conspiracy had its head and front. For the purpose of his business he disguised himself as a merchant—a Mr. Oldbach, a western manufacturer of cigars who was visiting in the metropolis for the purpose of improving his trade. He stopped at a second-class hotel, and after a few days of underlying management to get into the confidence of John Dremé, a German, who was known to have once been a counterfeiter.

A few evenings together, a few visits to the theater, and a general exchange of good fellowship, and Dremé was ready to do his part in solving the big fraud against the government. He introduced the detective to one James Walker, who, after a great deal of talk, mysteriously permitted him to have a peep at the new counterfeit tobacco stamp. It was so perfect that it would have taken the skill of an expert to tell it from the genuine article. Walker said that if Mr. Oldbach was discreet, he might be able to buy quantities of the stamps at a very low price. The bogus merchant said he would take the bogus stamp proposition into consideration. He immediately reported to Colonel Whitley at Washington and asked for further instructions. They came quickly by wire. He was instructed to agree to the purchase of a quantity of the stamps, but was told to have witnesses present so that arrests could be made.

Walker arranged to meet his supposed customer at one of the typical French cafes on the west side of Broadway. Walker and two of his pals were there. Mr. Oldbach came along, much to the gratification of the counterfeiter. The waiter, a very French-looking person, with waxed mustache, ushered them into the private dining room with much bowing and a servile flourish of shoulders. A bright-looking fellow took their hats and coats, and after they had been comfortably seated about a round table, an intelligent waiter, who wore an imperial that made him look like Napoleon III, came and took their order.

The food was good and the service was better, and all of the diners united in saying that it had been one of the best table d'hôte dinners they had ever enjoyed. They had passed the soup and roast and salad and were engaged on the dessert before the subject of their meeting was even suggested. It was Oldbach then who started the conversational ball in motion.

"Well, gentlemen," he said, "I suppose we will have to get down to business."

"Very well," responded Walker. "I've had a talk with my friends and they say that if you will take the stamps in wholesale quantities you can have them at twenty-five cents on the dollar of the amount they represent."

the disreputable business, and, at the instance of Detective Applegate, agreed to meet Hardgrave and purchase counterfeit stamps from him.

The corner of Amity and Mercer streets was fixed as the place of the rendezvous. The hour was seven o'clock in the evening, just about dusk, when that section of the city was likely to be deserted. The detective prepared for the meeting with great care. Chief Whitley, Operative Applegate and six other men were scattered about the neighborhood. Hardgrave appeared at the time appointed but he noticed some of the men lurking in the shadows and he took alarm and ran away. Chief Whitley pursued him for several blocks, but just before he overtook him Hardgrave very cleverly tossed $6,000 worth of bogus stamps into the window of a passing street car. A struggle took place between the two men, and after the counterfeiter had been overcome the street car was out of sight. No bogus stamps were found in possession of Hardgrave, and under the law the chief was compelled to release him.

Colonel Whitley and Operative Applegate were persistent. They knew that the tobacco stamp counterfeiting scheme had been merely scotched and not killed. They were determined to carry the matter to a conclusion. Hardgrave was shadowed for three months. Finally, one day he was followed to a room on the upper story in a house on Nassau street. He escaped, but Applegate, not Hart L. Pierce, an engraver, who lived and did business in the building. Pierce was arrested when he was accused of being an accomplice of the counterfeiter. A search of his place revealed a number of plates and various other paraphernalia used in the manufacture of bogus money and stamps.

He finally admitted that he had made the plate from which the counterfeit tobacco stamps had been printed. In short, he made a full confession of the whole business. He added, however, that the printing of the tobacco stamps had ceased, but the scheme had developed a new line of business. He said that they were now located at a house on Staten Island, where they were busily engaged in turning out millions of bogus internal revenue, match stamps. These operations, he said, were being carried on under the

White Spots on the Map

It is odd that so much fuss is made about the poles. There is still enough unexplored land in the world to make a new continent, if lumped together.

For instance, within ten days' journey from London there is a tract of country the size of Germany, France and Holland combined, and as unknown as the mountains of the moon, says London Answers. It occupies nearly the whole of central southern Arabia.

This pleasing district is known as the Dhakins, on the Dwelling of "Yald," and consists of what Lord Salisbury once politely referred to as "chiefly light soil," when he was speaking of the French possessions in Africa. It is a mighty waste of sand, with not a single river—as far as can be judged—in more than 400,000 square miles.

Compared with this country the Sahara is of pleasant and fruitful tract. It delves even the Arab and the camel.

Another wholly unknown tract of country—one that is likely to show its future explorers more profit than the last mentioned—is to be found in Tibet, along the lower Himalayas. It is about the size of the United Kingdom.

Of course, central Tibet, Lhasa, and so forth, are more "tripper" districts now, since the British expeditions to the secret city. But the southwestern part of the country has yet to see a white man's face.

It seems quaint that any part of the British empire should remain untraversed by white men. The coast of New Guinea is comparatively civilized and the British portion is administered by the crown. Certain parts of the hinterland, too, are well known—so much so that the birds of paradise which once swarmed in one of two trade have been nearly exterminated by skin collectors employed by Paris and London millinery firms.

Large portions of the interior, however, are still jealously preserved by families who dine, for choice, upon each other. In spite of this, the whole island is divided between the British, German and French nations.

Perhaps, on the whole, the finest place to get absolutely lost is in the interior of South America, where 300,000 square miles or so are still waiting for the first white man's foot to intrude on any of them. Most of this lies around the water shed of the Upper Amazon and its tributaries.

Many of the names politely ascribed by the atlas to the rivers and mountains here are efforts of imagination. Only a small number have really been reached or surveyed.

The principal joys that await forthcoming expeditions are fever of a very malignant sort, armies of ants that can decimate a baggage train, and even overwhelming and evil propitiation; impassable cypress swamps and snake bite. The latter commodity cannot be equaled anywhere else—there is no place on the globe where deadly snakes swarm to such an extent and hardly any of them permit the least hope of life after a bite.

Even the natives—mainly harmless forest Indians—have no notion of the way about, but all places are alike to them. They have been known to bring gold dust down from places which they cannot, or do not want, to describe.

The Himalayas themselves, on the doorstep of India, and no very great way from Siam, there is a district across the border that is still unexplored, and nothing is known of the hill tribes that inhabit it, except by rumor.

According to native accounts it is a country of autogates, for the bill rule entirely, and each woman with the property qualifications has at least four or five husbands, who do all the house and farm work and have no voice in affairs.

TEMPLE OF HEAVEN

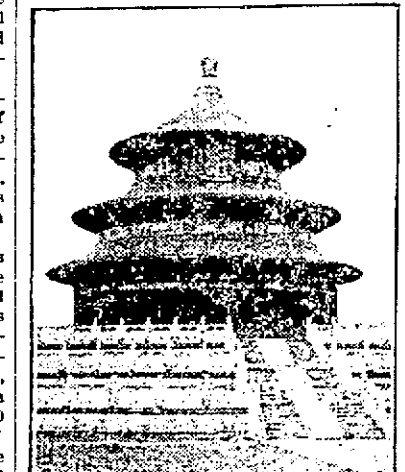

Remarkable Chinese Holy Shrine in Peking.

For Imperial Worship Only, and Ceremonies Never Witnessed by Foreigners—Customs of Centuries Observed.

Peking, China.—The Temple of Heaven is the most sacred as well as the most beautiful of all Chinese religious edifices. It is used only for imperial worship, and no foreigner has yet seen the stately and elaborate ceremonies that take place here on fixed dates every year. The buildings of which it consists are situated in a large walled park in the southeast section of the Chinese city of Peking. A broad, stone paved road leads to the temple from the Chienmen, the largest gate of the Tartar city. This gate is exactly in front of the main entrance to the imperial palace. The massive doors at its central entrance are thrown open only when the emperor leaves his palace to visit the Temple of Heaven or the Temple of Agriculture.

The park in which the Temple of Heaven lies is almost square in shape and is surrounded by a stout wall, nearly four miles long. Inside it is divided into sections by other walls and the visitor is bewildered by the number of gates through which he passes when being shown round the sacred buildings. At each he has to pay a small sum to the gatekeepers, who rely upon these tips as their main source of income. Some of the inclosures contain majestic buildings; others enclose the grazing grounds of the sacred animals, reared for immolation upon the temple altars.

The striking edifice, which is generally known as the Temple of Heaven, but is called by the Chinese the Temple of Prayer for the Year, to which the emperor repairs each spring to make offerings and pray for an auspicious year for his people, is a landmark for miles round. Its triple roof of deep blue, gold flecked tiles, surmounted by a massive gilt sphere, can be seen from the railway some time before Peking is reached. A new building, having been erected since 1889, when the old temple, of which this is an exact copy, was destroyed by fire. It stands on a triple marble terrace, having a stairway at each of the four points of the compass. When the emperor comes here to worship, the tables of his ancestors, which are usually kept in an adjoining building, are placed round the single lofty chamber of which the temple consists. A long marble paved terrace leads southward from the Temple of Heaven on past a smaller building of similar design, known as the Temple of the Universe, to the inclosure containing the altars of heaven.

It may be doubted whether any structure in the world excels this for grandeur and beauty. The marble paved courtyard that surrounds it, like all the terraces in the park, is kept and overgrown with weeds, and even the altar terrace themselves are overgrown with shrubs and grasses. But nothing can detract from the majestic simplicity of the altar.

It is on the main altar, kneeling on the circular slab of marble that marks its center that the emperor at each winter solstice, officiating as the high priest of his people, says what is known as the "prayer of heaven," words which heaven and his ancestors at dawn.

The previous night is spent in meditation and fasting in the Hall of Abstinence, a fitting preparation for the solemn rites that are to follow. Nearly two hours before dawn the emperor is called and arrayed in ceremonial raiment, after which he makes his way to the altar in a sedan chair, and kneeling on the center stone of the topmost terrace, burns incense to heaven, and renders an account of the important events of the year. Burnt offerings of animals are made on an altar of green porcelaine to the south-east of the main altar. In bronze braziers, ranged round the court the death sentences and offerings of silk and jade are committed to the flames. Groves of cypress trees surround the altar inclosure, except to the north, where a series of triple gates marks the way to the Temple of the Universe, while in the distance beyond, the roofs of the Temple of Heaven can be seen.

Dead Horse Kicks Man.

Seymour, Conn.—Living in Quarry road when he is well, John Bagdoudis, a stonecutter, rests in St. Raphael's hospital with his leg broken by the kick of a dead horse he was burying. He was helping his neighbor, Milkman James Ford, to drag the departed beast to its grave. He pulled, but pulled in vain. A man of gentle temper is John, but, letting the horse's tail go, he poked his foot with needless energy into its stomach, and the hind foot of the horse shot up. John knew no more. He says it was Ford, but the doctor sees hoof prints on his face. John is a stonecutter, so Ford found another undertaker.

LABOR GIVES ITS APPROVAL

Powerful American Federation Cordially Joins in Fight Against Spread of Tuberculosis.

Direct approval of the campaign for the sale of Red Cross seals has been given by the American Federation of Labor, according to an announcement by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. At the last annual convention of the American Federation of Labor a resolution was adopted calling on all the members of the Federation to further the sale as much as possible. The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, The American Federation of Labor has in every possible way aided the movement for the study and prevention of tuberculosis throughout the United States and Canada; and

"Whereas, The American National Red Cross has been in the past and is now making an especial effort, through the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals, to secure funds to carry on the war against tuberculosis, and by means of the fund raised in this festive hour in this direction, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the American Federation of Labor give its endorsement to the movement of the American National Red Cross, and encourage its members to further the sale of its festive hour seals in their respective communities."

MRS. SELBY AND PRIZE BABY

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and I love it for my baby and he has never had a sore of any kind. It does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel sure that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap, for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old, won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go. I am so glad you told me of Cuticura." (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Honolulu, Hawaii, California, Jan. 15, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 20, Boston.

Death Bed Jest.

Among what may be called death-bed jests, that of the Rev. James Guthrie of Stirling, one of the Covenanters, deserves a high place. Lord Guthrie recalls the story in "From a Northern Window." Mr. Guthrie was seated at the Cross in the high street, Edinburgh. The night before he asked for cheese for supper. His friends wondered, for the physicians had forbidden him to eat cheese. But he said, with a smile, "I am now beyond the hazard of all earthly diseases."—Uncle Remus Magazine.

Proved.

"There's no question about it," said Scribbleigh. "England is the place for an author to live in who wishes to write perfect English. We become more the expression of our environment, after all, and I wish to do my work in an atmosphere in which my ideas are spoken in all its primitive purity. Do you not agree with me, Lord Mistletoe?"

"If you're right, you're right, old top!" replied his lordship.—Harper's Weekly.

A Failure.

"Has he had a successful career?"

"No. He doesn't owe anybody any money."

MY DAUGHTER WAS CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"I send you here with the picture of my fifteen year old daughter, Alice, who was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was pale, with dark circles under her eyes, weak and irritable. Two different doctors treated her and called it 'nervousness,' but she grew worse all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended by the doctor. I bought a bottle for all female troubles."—Mrs. L. A. Conner, 1103 Holland Street, Baltimore, Md.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for their children have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Read This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or dizziness, should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by it.

direction of a well-known character by the name of Colonel Robert Clark. He was the next two or three days the employees and operatives of the Secret Service were as busy as bees. They first visited the room of Colonel Clark on East Thirtieth street. A careful search revealed upwards of fifty thousand bogus stamps of all kinds and for all purposes. Some were for cigar boxes; others were match stamps, and others still were for war stamps used on bank checks. Even Col. Whitley was amazed at the small denominations of some of the stamps. He knew that counterfeiters had manufactured bogus five-cent pieces, but he was surprised to discover that counterfeiters could make money in forging penny stamps.

All of the stuff found in Colonel Clark's room was confiscated. The colonel himself was arrested, but the news of his incarceration was jealously kept from public knowledge. Chief Whitley and Mr. Applegate were not ready for publicity.

On the following morning the chief, Operative Applegate and six of the best men in the service journeyed to Staten Island. They found the place without any difficulty and made a number of arrests. Some sort of alarm must have been given, however, because the master and his associates were not in evidence. Mr. Applegate walked about the grounds, surrounded by the building and presently came telling her what a powerful hero he was and winding up with this extravagant boast:

"I can with one flap of my wings throw down this magnificent stone palace."

The lady butterfly was much impressed by the boasting of her lord and finally yielded to his entreaties and accepted his suit. After a few minutes of dalliance the female butterfly flew away and the successful wooer remained alone upon the window sill preening his beautiful wings in the sunlight. Having him alone, Solomon addressed him in this wise:

"Didn't you know that you told that lady butterfly some terrible lies?"

"To which the butterfly returned in astonishment: 'And are you Solomon, the wisest of men, the husband of 600 wives?'"

"I am," replied the king.

"I should have thought," answered the butterfly, "that you had had too much experience with women to address such a reproach to me. Don't you know that we married men have to say

Solomon and the Boastful Butterfly

That Solomon talked with butterflies is a tradition which dates back to the very days of that wisest of kings. The origin of the tradition is to be found in one of the Midrash, those quaint and ancient rabbinical commentaries upon the Old Testament. The way the Midrash tells the tale is about as follows:

One day Solomon was standing at a window, when a female butterfly perched upon the sill. She was almost immediately followed by a male who sat beside her and began to woo her in butterfly language. Solomon listened to the butterfly's wooing, and was much interested when he heard the fair one scornfully reject her lover's advances. At last the wooer began to brag to her of his prowess,

The Boy Scouts.

The boy scout movement, says the Waupun Record, offers to the boy an opportunity for healthy improvement. It provides a natural outlet for boyish energy in a way to be of practical benefit. It teaches manly virtues, and inculcates the principles of courage, patience and perseverance. It cultivates hardihood and observation, making the boys self-reliant and helpful.

The scout must be able to swim fifty yards, tramp fourteen miles, handle an axe and show some skill in carpentry. He must understand compassing, the elements of map drawing, and have some knowledge of natural history and astronomy.

He is taught to keep himself clean in mind and body, and to be continually wide awake and straightforward.

To become a scout a boy must learn the scout law, take the scout oath, and know how to do four kinds of knots. This is the scout oath:

"On my honor I will do my best: To do my duty to God and my country; to obey the scout law; to help other people at all times; to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

The law follows: "A scout is trustworthy; a scout is loyal; a scout is helpful; a scout is friendly; a scout is courteous; a scout is kind; a scout is obedient; a scout is cheerful; a scout is thrifty; a scout is brave; a scout is clean; a scout is reverent."

That an organization founded on such principles and guided by such rules is a great power for good is self evident. The movement is already obtaining a foothold in all parts of the country, and its membership is increasing.

Council Proceedings.

Council met in special session, Mayor Wheelan presiding. Present: Aldermen Andrew, Hambrecht, Billmyer, Davis, Getzloff, Gilmeister, Friessner, Whitcomb, Hanson and Payne. Absent: Aldermen Abel, Ellis, Nash, Lohmeyer, Mosher and Jeffroy.

The mayor stated that the object of the meeting was to appoint a supervisor for the first ward as E. J. Arpin could not serve, also a supervisor for the sixth ward by reason of the vacancy caused by the absence of Fred Mosher.

On motion, by unanimous vote Louis Schreiner was appointed supervisor in the sixth ward. On motion, by unanimous vote F. L. Roeder was appointed supervisor in the first ward.

On motion, council adjourned.

Grain Show.

Contest Dec. 6 to be Big Success.

The reports from all parts of the country indicate a large and enthusiastic agricultural exhibit and contest here on December 6th.

A few years ago a show of this kind would be almost impossible, but both farmers and business men have learned that the real success of any agricultural community depends upon the scientific cultivation of the soil.

The state agricultural school has obtained marvelous results in the development of seed grains adapted to this climate, and the well posted farmers take advantage of every opportunity to hear the methods explained and to secure some of the seed.

The town and country are very closely bound together—one cannot succeed without the other and the bankers association is acting wisely in arranging for these contests.

Many of the younger farmers are annually attending the Agricultural school at Madison. Many more are unable to do this, and these exhibits and addresses by the experts are to a certain extent taking the place of the school for those who cannot go. If you haven't seen a premium list drop a line to S. K. Duran and he will send you one, or they can be had at any of the banks and stores.

Stevens Point Gazette.—Ang. Romschek, whose parents reside in the town of Hall, about five miles northwest of the city on the Jordan road, was instantly killed during the storm last Saturday noon. He was at work on the farm of Geo. Dryka, near Arnot, and had been engaged in hauling sugar beets into a wagon just previous to the time of the accident. When the storm broke both Dryka and Romschek started for the barn, but before they reached it a bolt of lightning struck the latter, killing him instantly and stunning the former. Dryka was able to crawl on his hands and knees to the barn and was not aware of the fact that the younger man had been killed until the rain had ceased, when he went back and found the lifeless body. The remains were later removed to the home of the young man's father, by whom he is survived, together with a step mother, four brothers, three half brothers and two half sisters.

How Weak Kidneys Cause Rheumatism

How Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills Unfailingly Restore Kidneys and Bladder—Cure Rheumatism—Trial Package Free!

Every one knows rheumatism is caused by excess of uric acid in the system. The poisonous accumulation is there because the kidneys fail to filter it from the blood. Kidneys are diseased, too weak to perform their full duty.

Naturally the thing to do is to restore the kidneys to normal—draw them out and expel the uric acid poison. That's how to really cure rheumatism—there's no other way.

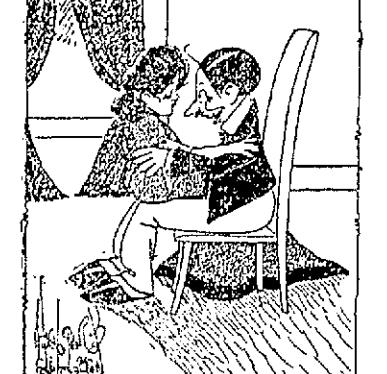

That's how Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills cure. That's why their cures are honest, no make-believe—permanent, instead of lasting only while the effect of the medicine lasts.

No matter what the form of rheumatism—arthritis, inflammatory, muscular—whether in your back (lumbago), your feet (gout), or in any part of the body, there's one remedy you can absolutely depend upon. One that not only stops every ache and pain, but that banishes their cause.

Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills drive out the poisons—cleanse the clogged kidneys—strengthen and invigorate them, so they do their work as Nature intended. If troubled with any rheumatic condition, any kidney or urinary trouble, don't delay treatment one hour! There are no ailments more destructive—so that quickly lead to fatal results—if not promptly checked.

Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills are sold under a refund guarantee. Druggists are authorized to refund money in case of dissatisfaction. Prices, 25c and 50c. Sample package free, if you'll send us ten cents. At druggists, or send 10c to Dr. Derby Medicine Co., Baton Rouge, Mich.

CURED SIX YEARS.

No Fear of Further Kidney Trouble.
Mrs. Joseph Clinker, State St., Tampa, Iowa, says: "My first symptom of kidney trouble was intense pain in my back. This grew worse until I needed in every part of my body. I rested poorly and was so stiff in the morning I found it hard to dress. I became tired easily, lost flesh and was in a bad way. I was well pleased with the quick relief Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills gave me. They drove the pains away and restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I have been free from kidney trouble for six years."

Tree Destroyers.
Porcupines are good climbers, and when unable to get enough apples wind-blown to the ground, swarm a tree and eat down the finest bearing limbs as quickly and neatly as a bear can sever the trunk of a young hemlock. Besides that, when other food is scarce they nibble the bark of young apple trees, and can destroy a newly planted orchard in a short time. They also are a great enemy to the young spruce, but why they eat them is a mystery, as it is not found that they even eat the tenderest shoots.

A Word of Wisdom.
"No, me dear," said Mrs. Maloney to the clerical worker when the topic turned upon the question of married women taking upon themselves the support of the family when the husband is out of work. "Don't yeze ever begin anything of that kind if so hap yeze should one day have a husband of your own. In the event of his happening on he should come home an' fall to cryin' because he was out av a job, do yeze sit down an' cry until he finds it ag'in. Mind that, now."—Woman's World.

A Matter of Constitution.
"There's no use talking about women making themselves the equals of men. They never can do it. It's a mere matter of constitution."

"How do you make that out?" It has been demonstrated that women can endure hardships even more stoically than men.

"Oh, I don't mean it that way. They will always wait for the change, even if it doesn't amount to more than a cent."

Since Teacher Did Not Know.
It was in the primary class of a graded school in a western city and the day was the 22d of February.

"Now, who can tell me whose birthday this is?" asked the teacher.

A little girl arose shyly.

"Well, Margaret, you may tell us," said the teacher.

"Mine," was the unexpected reply.

SCHOOL AFFAIRS WILL BE PROBED

W. H. Hatton Declares Many Improvements Can Be Made.

BOARD TO TAKE UP MATTER

Aim to Find a Plan That Will Make Boys and Girls of Wisconsin Take Up Education as a Keen Relish.

Madison.—According to a statement made by former Senator W. H. Hatton, the state board of public affairs probably will take up educational matters in Wisconsin. Hatton is a member of the board. "It is plain that the question of educational needs in the state should be looked into," said Mr. Hatton. "There are many places where improvement can be made. I have been giving the subject some attention and have gathered statistics that indicate that there is something wrong somewhere."

"It is shown that in 286 cities of the United States out of every 3,000 pupils only 323 go up to the eighth grade and only 115 go into high schools. Wisconsin, in an average state every way, and therefore these statistics would govern here, speaking generally."

"There are no statistics available relating to the state, but the general average of the 1,000 cities can be taken."

"Further investigation shows that in Newton, Mass., 38 per cent. of pupils get into the eighth grade, while in Springfield, Mass., only 11 per cent. get into the eighth grade. In Danville, Ill., 24 per cent. get into the eighth grade, while in Chicago only five per cent. make that grade."

"This shows that something can be done. How do the cities with such high percentages get the pupils to remain up to the higher grades? That is for us to discover."

"But it is evident there is some way to make pupils wish to stay in school. We ought to try and find out what the way is. There is something wrong where children do not wish to go to school. It is my opinion that if you furnish the proper inducements in the way of giving children the things that interest them they will not only go to school, but will want to stay there."

"I brought this subject to the attention of the members of the board at our last meeting and it is probable that we will take it up after other things are under way. In no other way can we benefit the state so much as in finding a plan, if such there be, that will make the boys and girls of the state take up education with a keen relish."

State Anti-Toxin at Cost.
The Wisconsin state board of health has been informed that the public officials of towns, villages and counties of the state generally do not know that the board is prepared to furnish, at nominal cost, the anti-toxin.

Commercial houses, which furnish most of the anti-toxin used in the state, charge more than the state does. The state's price for the 1,000 units is 40 cents.

The state board of health wants to make anti-toxin for other contagious diseases and had a bill introduced at the last session of the legislature appropriating sufficient money to enable it to do so, but the bill did not pass.

The board, however, makes some anti-toxin for typhoid fever, and used some in vaccinating the inmates of the Green County insane asylum and poorhouse during a recent outbreak of the disease there. Owing to its limited funds, the board is not able to furnish much typhoid anti-toxin.

The Pasteur Institute, which is under the direction of the board of health and is conducted in connection with the hygienic laboratory at the state university where the anti-toxin is made, treats patients for rabies at actual cost of the serum and the expense of injecting it. The board estimates that it saved the people of Wisconsin $15,000 for anti-toxins last year, and will probably do better this year.

To Present Ibsen Play.
The Wisconsin Dramatic society announced that the season's performance of its repertory season in Milwaukee will occur Friday, November 24, when Ibsen's play "The Master Builder" will be produced. The play is in three acts. The cast is made up of members of the Milwaukee and Madison groups of the society as follows:

Madison: Aline Solness, Florence Harrison of Milwaukee; Doctor Hoidal, Ernest Felse of Madison; Knut Brovik, Leo Tiefenbacher of Milwaukee; Ragnar Brovik, Erik Walker of Madison; Kari Muelser, Corinne McDonald of Madison; Hilda Wagner, Mrs. E. F. Sherry of Milwaukee.

State Banks—Post Deposits.
George D. Bartlett, secretary of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, said that all Wisconsin state banks are permitted to accept postal deposits.

Accorded to Mr. Bartlett, however, will put up government, state or municipal bonds to enable their banks to get government deposits. Mr. Bartlett is of the opinion that bond houses will continue to offer the loan of bonds to banks which desire government deposits, accepting surety bonds to protect themselves.

New State Corporations.
Articles of incorporation were filed as follows: The Arthur Manger company, Milwaukee; capital, $10,000; incorporators, Arthur Manger, Clara Manger and William Riden. The Elliott pleasure boat, Milwaukee; capital, $20,000; incorporators, Frederick Redick, Magnus Moeller, Emil Callies and Herman Priebe. The Johnson Land company, La. Crosse; capital, $20,000; incorporators, A. A. Morse, George M. Erickson and George W. Bunge. The Lake Shore Co-operative Creamery company, Randolph.

Appleton Cow in Lead.
A contest to determine the finest dairy cow in the state of Wisconsin has been conducted by the University of Wisconsin during the last two years. Last week the contest closed and the winner is to be announced as soon as records can be verified. Up to date the Holstein cow, Caroline Paul Partenease, owned by R. J. Schafer of Appleton is in the lead. During one year this cow produced 21,973 pounds of milk, 28,800 pounds of solids and 189 pounds of butter fat.

Flood Worse Than Realized.

An appeal for funds has been made in behalf of Black River Falls, the little city a few weeks ago so seriously stricken by flood. The committee portrays the damage as even worse than the public had realized.

The report follows:

To the Public:
The undersigned, recently appointed by Governor McGovern as a relief committee to receive and disburse such funds as may be given by sympathetic and charitably disposed people for the relief of Black River Falls sufferers from the devastating flood of October 6, have, after a thorough investigation of the conditions and careful study of the present and prospective effect upon the city and its citizens, arrived at the conclusion that the disaster cannot be fully comprehended and appreciated by those who have not been afforded the opportunity to make personal investigation and have hence determined to summarize the damage and portray the probable effect upon the city, as briefly as may be, as a means of calling the attention of the public to the need of further funds to place this former thriving city of 2,000 inhabitants in a position to measurably retrieve its loss by the individual efforts of its citizens, who are now struggling bravely against adverse circumstances.

Thanks to Little Brother

By MARY GILBERT

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Dick Ralston was thoroughly out of humor, both with himself and his surroundings. He had expected so much from his vacation this year! How carefully he had planned his outing to be at Spring Lake at the same time as Margaret!

He had pictured the bright hours he would spend with her, steadily gaining her favor, until there dawned that perfect day when he dared ask the important question. Instead of this alluring prospect, he found that insufferable Walter Chase paying Margaret open court.

Dick gritted his teeth at the thought of the times that she had refused his invitations because she had already accepted Walter's. The thought that he himself was to blame for not inviting her sooner never seemed to enter his head.

Tomorrow was his last holiday. Then he must leave Margaret and go back to work. To leave her was bad enough, but to leave her to Walter Chase—the thought was maddening.

"You look as if I feel," said a crisp, young voice at his elbow.

Dick turned quickly, a frown on his handsome face. He was in no mood to talk to any one just then, especially to Margaret's young brother.

"What's the matter?" he demanded irritably.

"I've broken my last fishing rod," Maurice answered gloomily, "and an empty pocket won't pay for a new one."

"That's hard luck," Dick admitted, "but not enough to make you look like me. You need only a little money to make you happy."

"And what do you need?" asked Maurice pointedly.

Dick flushed at the blunt question, and the boy smiled at his embarrassment.

"Needn't think I don't know," he said deliberately. "You're afraid that you stand no show with Margaret."

The frank friendliness of the boy's manner quite disarmed resentment.

"Do you know," he continued, contentedly.

"I don't want your thanks," Dick answered hotly. "I—I want you!"

The rosy flush of dawn seemed to be in the girl's cheeks as she stood for a moment with downcast eyes.

"This is no sudden desire," Dick continued earnestly. "It has been the greatest thing in my world since the first time I saw you. You remember that glorious evening?"

He was standing close beside her now, his dark eyes seeking hers. As she slowly raised her drooping lashes, Maurice, whom they had both quite forgotten, sprang up with a whoop of delight.

"Congratulations!" he exclaimed. "I'm off for that fishing tackle!"

The color deepened in Margaret's cheeks as she drew from Dick, exclaiming: "Whatever does the boy mean?"

"Never mind him!" responded Dick, regarding his former position. "Let's talk about something more interesting. Let us talk about—us!"

Modern Method of Business.
His name was Augustus Athrobald Robinson, but in the business house where he had lately secured a position as office boy, everybody called him Jim.

He was very keen on retaining his position, so when a caller came in one day and made a violent complaint about a letter that had not been posted to him Jim listened in terror.

"What does that boy?" cried his employer in a fury. "Here, you imp, take your coat and hat and get out! I'm ashamed of you! Go to the cashier and get your salary, and don't let me see you here again, you wretched little bungler!"

Jim, terrified and almost crying, left the office and hurried away.

The next morning his employer called at his home and the youth came to the door.

"You young donkey," exclaimed the visitor, "do you suppose I really sacked you yesterday? Of course not! Come on back to the office and every day I'll call on you and every day I'll sack you, go around the corner till the customer's gone and then come back."

And that's how Jim started in business, grew up to be the manager of the concern and now has an office boy of his own, whom he calls regularly every complaint that is made.—Tit-Bits.

A Form of Insanity.
"Pipps made a shocking confession last night at the theater."

Advice Concerning Shoes.

A shoe with a pointed toe and a high heel should be prohibited by law, declares the faculty committee on hygiene of the University of Wisconsin, in the second health bulletin, issued today to the students of the university.

A pointed toe, the committee declares, crowds the toes together into an unnatural position, while the high heel throws the entire weight of the body upon the front part of the foot and toes, which were never intended to bear such a weight. The results of wearing shoes with high heels and narrow toes are corns, bunions, and flat foot, as well as serious interference with the circulation.

Patent leather and enameled leather shoes should never be worn, the bulletin further states, because such shoes are practically impervious to moisture, the perspiration cannot escape from the shoe and as a result the foot becomes soft and tender.

In selecting a shoe the following points as to its shape must be considered: The shoe must be fully as broad as the sole of the foot. The heels should be low and broad. The shoe must be so flexible that the foot may be easily bent while raising the foot on the toes in walking. The inner side of the shoe should be in a straight line; no idea is more harmful than the one that a shoe last which slopes from the heel outward to the toe conforms to the natural position of the foot. To walk with the toes out is to walk incorrectly; only city dwellers walk in this manner; an Indian's toes are never turned out. The toe of a shoe should be broad enough to permit all of the toes to lie side by side without crowding. A shoe must not be tight around the ankle.
